Roads, bridges or public transport being unavailable to use?

Physical damage or flooding to your home or business?

Having to leave your home or business to stay in temporary accommodation?

An electricity blackout or loss of other utilities, such as fuel, water or gas?

Having your personal information stolen or corrupted online?

A risk to you or your family's health from extreme temperatures or disease?

Being caught up in a terrorist attack involving firearms?

Being caught up in an environment contaminated by hazardous materials?

To protect yourself, your family and your business, you might consider...

Be Aware

Know your local risks; read your Community Risk Register

Consider signing up for weather and flood alerts

Be aware of your surroundings; report unattended packages or suspicious behaviour

Prepare

Keep up to date with vaccinations

Know where key documents and medications are so you can leave quickly

Consider the right insurance for your home and business, and travel insurance when abroad

Protect yourself online. Be Cyber Aware

Consider having basic supplies at home, like bottled water, a torch and batteries

Consider backup childcare and check what your child's school plans to do during emergencies

Respond

If you are caught up near gunfire; Run. Hide. Tell.

If instructed, or if you are unsure what to do; Go in. Stay in. Tune in.

Preparing for Emergencies in Lancashire

A large group of people, mostly older adults, are seated in a hall, facing a presentation. A woman stands at a podium on the right side of the stage, presenting. A large screen behind her displays the text "Support for Learning" and a logo. The room has a high ceiling and large windows in the background.
